Activity/Project Description:

- Students review vocabulary and phrases from 3-5 «basketry materials» seasonal activity.
- Students view and handle Siletz baskets representing a variety of patterns, weaves, styles, and uses; also, archival photos of baskets and basket weavers, and raw and prepared basketry materials.
- If possible, students see different types of baskets in action – cooking, trap... maybe somebody could loan us a baby.
- Students review materials preparation techniques.
- Materials are prepared as instructed (soaking, splitting, straightening, etc.).
- Students watch Bud do a brilliant weaving demonstration.
- Students weave an open-weave basket using rattan, or traditional materials if they are able. (This will require assistants who know the basics of weaving.)
- Advanced students should be offered the opportunity to continue on and learn more challenging weaves and decoration techniques.
- Students collaborate to produce an image and text presentation of some kind that is an extension of the “basketry materials” presentation and documents the activity. (PPT, video, book, calendar)

Materials/Supplies:

- A variety of Siletz baskets and/or images representing different uses, weaves, patterns, and materials.
- Prepared weaving materials: split spruce root, peeled and dried hazel, and rattan.
- One or more weavers and assistants – or «Oregon Tribes Project» basketry documentation.
- Archival photographs of Siletz baskets and weavers.
- Buckets, water, and towels.
- Assessment materials; games, quizzes, etc.
- Materials from “recommended lessons”.
